

mommy's little angel by lori goldsmith

mommy's

little

angel (as the shirt from santa said)

my little boy

whogavemeunconditionalloue

and joy

thirteen years - not nearly enough

forever grateful

for the days we got

i'd always squeeze

your little jelly bean

to tell you how much to me

you mean

the best little boy

in the whole wide world

yourwholelifethrough

love was all

you ever knew

i promised never to let you suffer that i would know when it was time powerless to protect you

no more from life

for your birthday to heaven sent

you went to sleep

now you are

completely at peace

safe from all illness and pain

in my mind we will play

our special game

that started

when

you

were

just

a

pup

"mommy would get you"

we'd roll around
and all that stuff

i miss you so my little boy

you'll always be

so

so

special

to

me

no other shall take your place no other shall soothe the ache

oh my charly

how hard

i prayed

the iv would work

to keep you here

with me

on earth

i truly believed

your wellness would last

then hope flew by

as the day was fast

stark reality

hit me hard

mylittleboycouldnotlast

by the

setting

of the sun

i knew no kisses were left in that little tongue

i knew what deed must be done

*forever our days
i'll remember and treasure* not to be in my arms again i'm comforted in knowing

*wherever life does lead with your mommy
you will always be mommy's little angel*
